What's most important

There was once a little girl who had received $10 for her birthday. She asked her father to take her to the mall to spend her money, and after putting it off as long as he could, he took her shopping. He took her to a dress store, the toy store, a doll store, and even the Apple store. But his daughter did not find anything to spend her money on. The man was getting frustrated and he finally suggested that they go to Wal-Mart so that she could find something to buy.

However, the father became even more angry when after being in Wal-Mart for an hour, the daughter found what she wanted—wrapping paper. The man told her that she had wasted both his time and her money by buying such a worthless item

That night, the little girl brought a gift to her father, and he saw that she had wrapped it in her new wrapping paper. She placed it in his lap and said "This is for you, Daddy."

The man became embarrassed by his overreaction earlier, but his rage continued when he saw that the box was empty. He yelled at her: "Don't you know, when you give someone a present, there is supposed to be something inside?"

The little girl looked up at him with a surprised look and said: "Oh, Daddy, it's not empty at all. I blew kisses into the box and they are all for you."

At the beginning of Philippians, Paul prays that the love of his church "abound more and more in real knowledge and all discernment, so that [they] may approve the things that are excellent, in order to be sincere and blameless until the day of Christ" (Phil. 1:9-10). It's easy to let the little things bother us. And it is even easier to let the little moments in life escape. Good days have the potential to become bad ones at any moment. So this week I hope you will take a little more time to think about what you want to say, who you want to be with, and what it is that really makes us happy. And then go do it! Because we won't have those people, those moments, and that time forever. Love you all,

Adam
